

Research Review partners with Trade Me Jobs

If you'd thought of looking for a new job (or a new staff member) you might be interested in our latest exciting development. Research Review is partnering with Trade Me Jobs to improve the success and value of the health jobs section.

Research Review is now listing all Trade Me health jobs in its jobs section of websites in New Zealand, Australia, and South Africa. Links between the sites are now active and allow you to transfer straight to the most relevant section to make your job search easier.

Through its network of medical specialists, Research Review will also be providing advice and guidance to Trade Me Jobs to help improve its offering to the medical sector.

If you're looking for a job or staff member we would encourage you to use Trade Me Jobs and get the benefit of the Research Review partnership. In addition, our publications also carry recruitment advertising and if you would like to consider advertising in our journals contact us at admin@researchreview.co.nz

James Armstrong

Research Review

